Supporting Under-Resourced Students in Southwest Florida

Challenge

Many under-resourced students have the talent, determination, and potential to succeed, but they lack access to the academic support, mentoring, and opportunities that help young people thrive.

Solution

Through tutoring, mentoring, and character-building programs, New Horizons empowers students to realize their potential and develop the confidence, skills, and resilience needed to thrive in school and life.

74% 1.4 million of Florida children want to participate in after-school programs but cannot access one

17% of Lee and Collier County's children live in poverty

92% of Florida students graduate high school, yet many are still struggling to thrive

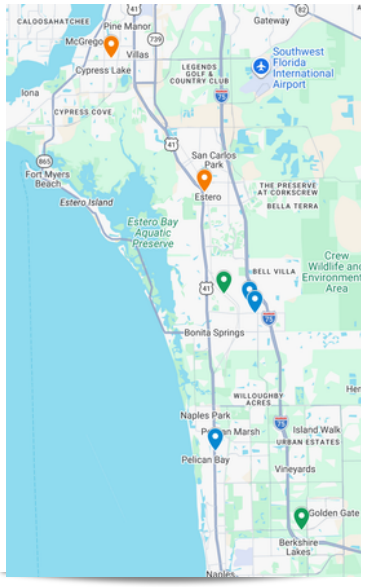

87% of students report improved communication and self-advocacy skills

100% of New Horizons' Class of 2026 graduated high school

144+ graduates pursued college, vo-tech, military, service, or careers
